

New Orleans Invited to Adopt This Descendant of Her First Governor

JEANNE de BIENVILLE de MARZITS.

The war has not killed romance. Mme. Jeanne de Bienville de Marzits has written from Paris to Mayor Martin Behrman of New Orleans that she would be "profoundly pleased" if the city of New Orleans would adopt her daughter Jeanne, eighteen years old. The mother is a direct descendant of Jean de Bienville, the first governor of "Nouvelles Orleans," as it was known early in the history of America. She enclosed this picture of her daughter.
