

• THEY have had another editorial "affair of honor" in New Orleans. According to the Picayune, at 4 P. M., on the 29th ultimo, a duel was fought in that city between André L. Roman, of the New Orleans Bee, and Mr. C. de la Bretonne, editor of the Sun. The weapons were small swords. Mr. Roman was twice wounded in the right or sword arm, when Dr. C. Beard, surgeon, declared that the fight could not go on. This terminated the affair.
